The 3rd Call for Papers

2019 International Workshop on Geocomputation for Social Sciences and Intelligent Geospatial Information Service

July 7-9, 2019 | Wuhan, China

The 2019 International Workshop on Geocomputation for Social Sciences and Intelligent Geospatial Information Service will be held in Wuhan, China on July 7-9, 2019. This workshop is organized and hosted by Wuhan University.

In order to further cope with the new developments, demands, technologies and challenges of the research field in geocomputation for social sciences and intelligent geospatial services, promote the interdisciplinary research and academic exchanges among researchers, Wuhan University organizes this international workshop to discuss the frontier and hot issues in the related fields. Experts, scholars, professionals and students at home and abroad interested in the workshop are welcomed to attend and participate.

The workshop also provides the technical training on methods, tools and platforms in the field of geocomputation for social sciences. Interested scholars and students are welcome to register.
